

Hindustan Times
New Delhi, 9 May 2008

Tale to thrill

A series of bomb blasts take place in New Delhi that compels the Army to call for a special squad that is responsible for tackling the miscreants. In the meantime, a young boy, Iqbal, is trained to be a jehadi. Sounds like a perfect Bollywood film, but Mukul Deva goes one step further and brings in contemporary references that readers can recognise. With vivid descriptions of the army life and Iqbal's transformation to a jehadi and later an anti-jehadi, certainly qualifies as an edge-of-the-seat thriller. You'll certainly enjoy it.

—Anamika Chatterji

Title Lashkar
By Mukul Deva
publisher Harper Collins
Price Rs 95

